SERVING THE MONTEREY PENINSULA INCLUDING FORT ORD

Vol. 28 No. 5, Wednesday, January 16, 1974 | 510 Broadway Seaside, Calif. 93955 Area Code 408: 394-6632 | 10 cents per copy; $5.00 per year by mail

Renters May Be Eligible For Credit

Most Californians who lived in rented quarters during 1973 will be eligible for a credit against their personal income tax liability, according to Martin Huff, Executive Officer of the Franchise Tax Board.

"Further," said Huff, "if the credit exceeds the tax liability, the difference is refundable to the taxpayer."

Under provisions of the law which are effective for the 1973 tax year, most individuals who rented their living quarters will be eligible for a credit ranging from $25 to $45. In order to qualify, an individual must have:

*Been a resident of California on March 1, 1973.

*Rented and occupied a house or dwelling which was the principle place of abode on March 1, 1973.

Those individuals who owned and occupied a mobile home situated on rented land will also qualify.

Huff also said it is not necessary for an individual to meet the normal income tax filling requirements to claim the credit. If an individual is not required to file a return for income tax purposes, but qualifies for the renter's credit, he should take the following steps:

File a California Form 540 personal income tax return, preferably using the printed label prepared by the department if one is available.

Complete the applicable filing status portion of the form (lines 1 through 5).

Enter the total income for the taxable year on line 16 of the form.

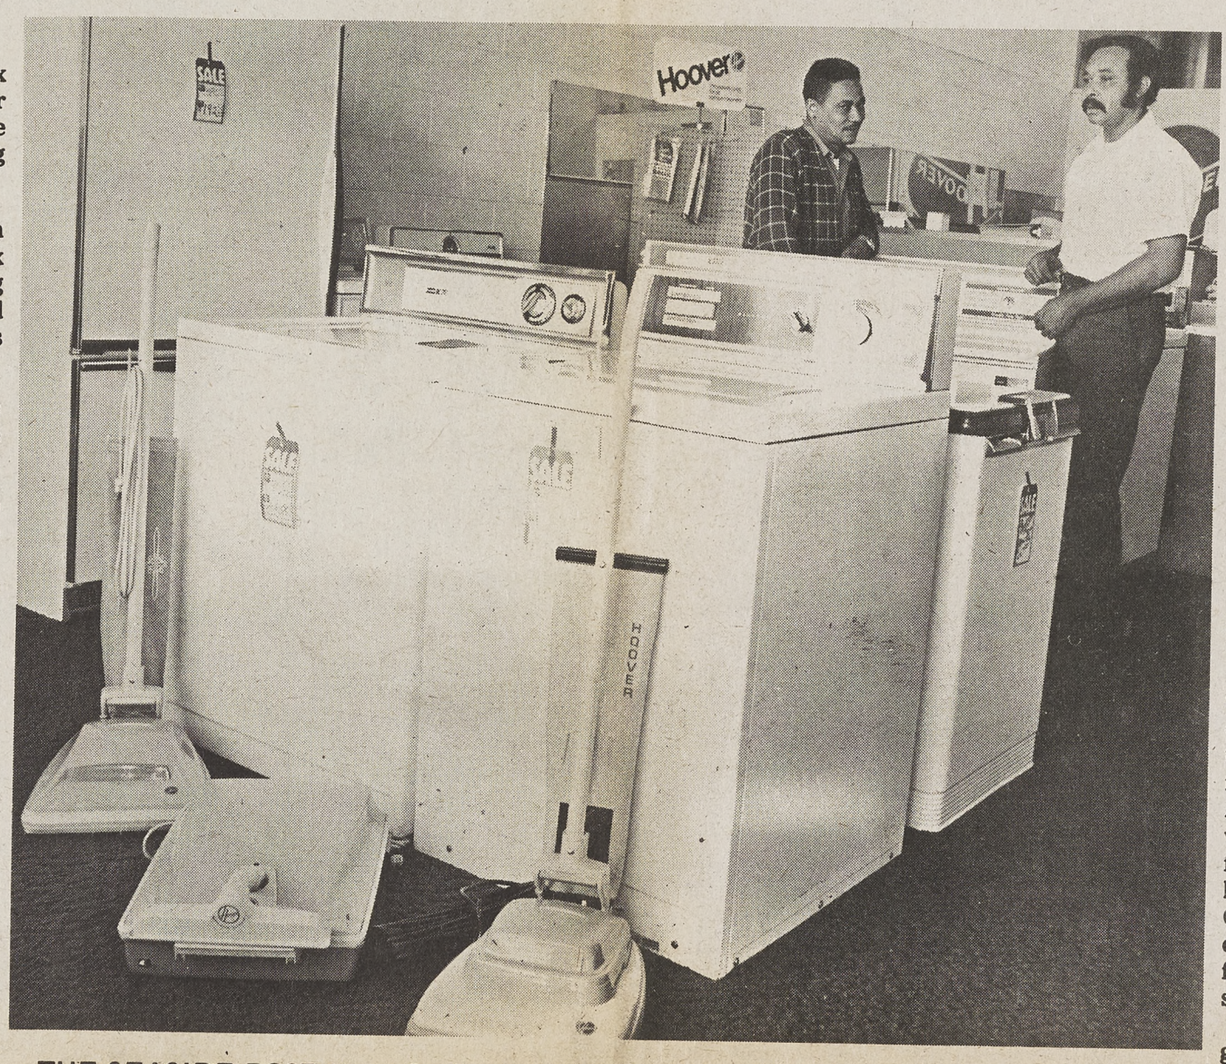
Enter the allowable renter's credit, on line 28, and sign and mail the return to the Franchise Tax Board, P. O. Box 13-540, Sacramento, California 95813.

If there is no tax liability, the entire amount of the renter's credit will be issued to the taxpayer in the form of a refund warrant.

Individuals or married couples with an adjusted gross income of less than $5,000 are entitled to a $25 credit. Others may be entitled to as much as $45.

Huff urged individuals qualifying for the renter's credit to file returns as early as possible in order to expedite their refund.

BUSINESS OF THE WEEK



THE SEASIDE POST News-Sentinel visited W.K.R.A., a Hoover vaccum cleaner franchise located at 1190 Broadway in Seaside, owned and operated by Clarence Williams. In addition to the very latest in the Hoover line, we found many kinds of new and used vacuum cleaners, along with mixers, refrigerators, and a variety of appliances. W.K.R.A. is also noted for its repair department. He repairs televisions, stereos, radios, sewing machines, refrigerators, and, naturally, vacuum cleaners. If you have it, he repairs it. And he is as near as your telephone. Heading up the repair department is Leroy Miles (right), shown above, receiving directions from Mr. Williams.

MPUSD Will Live With Dark Mornings

The Monterey Peninsula Unified School District will maintain its normal school schedules until further notice, despite the fact that the first day of winter Daylight Savings Time began in pitch darkness.

Supt. James Harrison told district trustees that he favored waiting before making any decision, hoping in the meantime either that the mornings will get lighter or someone will come up with a workable idea.

He said suggestions to delay the starting of schools might cause more problems than would be answered. Working parents with young children might have to leave the children unattended or find babysitters, he said. And a later school schedule would result in problems for older students who keep after-school jobs. Changing hours for just elementary schools would foul up tight school bus schedules, he added.

Harrison said one suggestion offered was to have younger children carry flashlights or wear reflective tape on their clothing for safety.

At the meeting, trustees voted to reduce student milk prices by 2 cents per carton. The move takes advantage of a change in the federal milk subsidy program. Milk is now 10 cents for one-third quart cartons and 8 cents for half-pint cartons.

The board called for bids on an estimated $250,000 worth of data processing equipment and materials to be phased in during a five year period. Bids will be opened on Feb. 19.

Trustees encouraged a proposal to allow community resources in Marina to construct a swimming pool at Los Arboles Junior High School. Harrison pointed out that the district could not afford, on its own, to build and maintain a pool, but he said the presence of a pool at the school would be a boon both to the students and the community.

A board work session was called for Jan. 28 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the board room at 700 Pacific St. At the session, trustees will be brought up to date on the district's move toward a program budgeting system, set to start next year.

Conference Scheduled

Rev. Nelson G. Mink will hold "Deeper Life Conference" at the Church of the Nazarene, 1332 La Salle Ave. in Seaside, from January 16 through 20.

Rev. Mink has been a pastor for over 40 years. He is a noted Greek Scholar and Bible Teacher. He is also a poet and with his guitar is a favorite with young people. He has committed much of the Scripture to memory and will quote a chapter during each service.

The Sunday Services will be at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. The Services through Friday will be at 7:30 p.m.

Sidney E. Jackson is the pastor.

Young Singers To Be At MPC

"People are what matter. That's an idea that is worth celebrating and Up With People does it with charm, love, and uncomplicated joy." And that is only part of the many good comments heard about the enthusiastic group of young people who call their group Up With People. They will be performing at the Monterey Peninsula College gym this Saturday, Jan. 19th, 2:30 and 8 p.m.

Up With People is an independent, nonprofit, educational corporation, designed to combine the best of academics through mobile education and world travel with relevant social involvement. Musical productions are its principal form of communication, reaching out to people around the globe.

The Up With People show is a two-hour kaleidoscope of original music -- rock, jazz, country and folk -- with choreographed staging.

Up With People casts, consisting of young men and women 17 to 25 years old, are on the road ten months a year, performing in approximately 130 American cities annually. They have performed in all 50 states and at over 900 high schools and colleges.

Tickets are available for the Up With People show at all branch offices of Monterey Savings, at MPC, and at Ft. Ord.

MPUSD Holds Day For Minority Students

The history, culture and current problems of students from diverse ethnic backgrounds received the attention of all 1,600 employees of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District yesterday (Jan. 15) at Seaside High School.

Schools were closed that day, according to Supt. James Harrison, so that all employees -- teachers and non-teachers alike -- could attend programs being presented by more than 50 local residents representing various ethnic and racial groups.

Supt. James Harrison said the day was designated by district trustees as the Martin Luther King Jr. Staff In-service Day. He said the day's events were designed to accomplish six major goals:

*To help all employees understand and effectively relate to the history, culture and current problems of students of diverse ethnic backgrounds and their environments.

*To develop respect for minority-group cultural traditions and for the aspirations of minority-group children and families.

*To help employees understand the special problems of learning and behavior of students in mexed or minority schools.

*To increase knowledge about available resources and instructional strategies.

*To help teachers and other employees improve the quality of their relationships with students and to improve the quality of the relationships between students of diverse ethnic backgrounds.

*To promote higher expectations of educational achievement and vocational preparation by minority-group students.

Along with the local residents and district employees who presented information to the staff, there were addresses by two keynote speakers, according to James Lang, director of program planning who oversaw planning for the Tuesday activities.

Philip Montez, director of the Western Regional Office of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights in Los Angeles, spoke to the employees during a morning general session. The afternoon's keynote address was delivered by Gloria Curtis, supervisor of human relations for the Los Angeles city school system.

Harrison noted that two-thirds of the district's 31 schools and three children's centers have minority student populations of over 25 percent. The state now requires that staff members in all such schools be given training in better understanding the history, culture and current problems of minority students. Tuesday represented part of the Monterey district's attempts to provide such training, he said.

PLEASE HELP -- Mothers' March to collect money to fight against birth defects will be held from January 21 through 27 on Peninsula. Shown above with David Craig Smith, poster child for Monterey County, are Marg Rodriguez, March chairman for Marina; Bunny Such, Monterey County Coordinator for March; and Bernice Williams, Seaside Chairman. Marina Fireman Honored

At the last regular meeting of the Board of Marina Fire Directors, Chief Lester B. Waddel announced Marina's "Volunteer Fireman of the Year" for 1973, Mr. Robert I. Moore.

Mr. Moore has contributed over 367 hours to the Marina Fire Department during the last 12 months. The humanitarian aid he has given to victims of emergency during his time of service with the Marina Volunteer Fire Department, has reflected credit upon him as an individual and on the organization he represents to his fellow citizens.

Bob Moore is the third member of the US. Army to receive this Marina Volunteer Fireman of the Year Award.

The four runners ups for this award were: Jean Gibson, Charles Lincoln, James Rapose and Carl V. Rosenberg who combinedly contributed 884 hours to the department.

It is thru the contribution of public spirited men that the community's efforts to improve without prohibitively increased cost have been realized and the image of the Marina Volunteer Firemen in the community has grown.

Today's Army NEWS

By SSG R. Cardwell
ARMY RECRUITER

Hi everybody.

Getting a cab in New York can be murder. In fact, getting anything moved into or out of New York can be an adventure. The transportation industry is among the largest and most important in the country. Perhaps nothing in recent years has dramatized this as effectively as the "strike." Work stoppage, particularly in New York, has brought several facets of the industry into public focus; most notably, the work done by longshoremen.

Loading and unloading cargo is difficult under the best of conditions, which the extremity of winters and summers in most of our ports severly hampers. Longshoremen decided a while back that what they did was pretty important and after trying to get along without them during intermittent periods, municipal authorities came to agree. Today, longshoremen are well-paid and receive a generous supply of workmans' benefits.

Training for this type of work is pretty much an on-the-job, keep-your-eyes-open-and-learn-what you-can deal. The methods and procedures for handling cargo have grown progressively sophisticated. Heavy duty equipment now eases the back-breaking drudgery of manual loading and unloading. Hours, though long, have stabilized.

Many young men interested in jobs in the shipping industry have discovered an Army background is of substantial help when trying to locate that first opportunity. Cargo Handlers in TODAY'S ARMY are sent to the U.S. Army Transportation School, Fort Eustis, Virginia, once they have completed basic training. There they receive intensive instruction designed to orient them to basic cargo handling activities involved in loading and unloading cargo at terminals, beaches and wharves.

They also receive a thorough grounding in all matters related to cargo handling including basic aircraft loading techniques, helicopter external and internal loading procedures, characteristics of floating craft and amphibians and how to mark supplies and check cargo, shipping gear and rigging masts for damage or depletion.

Those young people who have had the urge to make their living working with power generators now have a unique opportunity, thanks to TODAY'S ARMY which is currently offering training to young men and women with aptitudes in this field.

Power Generator Mechanics in TODAY'S ARMY, travel to Fort Belvoir, Virginia just out side Washington, D.C., immediately after completing their basic training. There, they receive seven weeks of intensive instruction under top instructors. The training is thorough and professional by any standards.

After the seven week course, enlistees know the fundamentals of electricity and its application to portable power generating equipment and gasoline and diesel engine operation. They also know all the safety measures built into protective and controlling devices. In addition, they have been taught all the essential features of voltage computation, amperage and resistance factors. This training and experience enables young Power Generation Equipment Operators Mechanics to install, operate and maintain general and multi-purpose portable gnerator sets, arc welders and frequency converters. Also, they are expected to discharge a wide range of duties within this sphere of activity. They must know which power generators can be used in specific instances and they must know how to calculate electrical power requirements.

Records must be kept of all maintenance work done on equipment, so Power Generator Equipment Operators/Mechanics receive invaluable experience in this area. This generally is of considerable assistance to those seeking jobs in civilian markets after a hitch in TODAY'S ARMY.

Enlistees are alos able to choose the installation at which they would like to work.

For more information about jobs in TODAY'S ARMY, please contact us at 431 Webster St., Monterey or call 372-4742/374-0553.

Time Change Means Change To More Visible Outerwear For Kids

One precaution with the energy crisis move to daylight saving time should be a change to more visible outer wearing apparel for children, according to local optometric spokesman Dr. James Hicks, president of the Central Coast Optometric Society.

Pushing the clock ahead in mid-winter has put many school children and workers on the streets in pre-dawn darkness when visibility is poor. Unless young and old alike take steps to make themselves easily seen in the dark, they will increase the risk of becoming pedestrian casualties, says Dr. Hicks.

A simple and effective way for parents to increase their child's ability to be seen is to decorate clothing with reflectorized material. Children on school safety patrols should trim not only their clothing but their signs as well. Optometric studies have shown that only pedestrians wearing reflectorized clothing are safely visible to drivers at all speeds.

Circling the sleeves of a jacket or coat with a band of reflective fabric will increase the pedestrian's visibility from front, side and rear as the fabric lights up brightly in auto headlights.

Sew-on reflective material is available in sewing and notion departments of major department stores and in most fabric stores, making it convenient for parents to convert regular jackets into reflective ones.

mothers of children with birth defects ask themselves," says Bunny Such, coordinator of the annual Mothers' March on the Monterey Peninsula.

"'What can I do to help?' is a question every mother ought to ask herself," Mrs. Such believes. "Taking defects is a significant way. We need volunteers for the Mothers' March on Jan. 21 through 27."

There are so many kinds of birth defects, with varying causes, that no single scientific discovery will solve the entire puzzle. But medicine now offers ries [illegible] preventing, correcting or repairing certain kinds of damage, she explains.

"In its broad range of Medical Service Programs, the March of Dimes includes prenatal care programs and intensive care nurseries," Mrs. Such says. "These are particularly important for the "high risk" pregnant woman, who is most likely to face maternal complications and deliver a distressed infant. High-risk factors can be the mother's age, untreated disease, poor nourishment and possible Rh blood incompatibility.

"Intensive care nurse- [illegible] monitoring by highly trained doctors and nurses. Not only can these nurseries substantially reduce infant mortality, they also offer the best chance for normal, healthy development," she emphasizes.

Anderson Says Huge Price Increases Not Justified

Congressman Glenn Anderson (D-Calif.) charged recently that "the energy crisis has become an excuse to trip off the American consumer through scare tactics and deception."

"Simply because we are being denied our usual supply of Middle Eastern oil is no reason to jack-up domestic prices," Anderson said.

In the past, the U.S. has relied on Arab oil for approximately 10 percent of our consumption. The remainder of our imports -- totaling about 15 percent -- have come from Canada, Venezuela, and Indonesia.

"Prices at the service station have nearly doubled in the last several months, yet there is no justification for this huge increase if we are to believe the Administration spokesman, that the Arab embargo is to blame," he continued.

The great majority of U.S. oil is produced locally, thus Anderson questioned the giant increase in prices.

"While the Arab-Israeli war has been the excuse to raise prices, it -- in fact -- has had little relationship to our present situation, except to provide a convenient gimmick to scare the consumer," the former Lt. Governor said.

"If the major oil companies were merely passing on increases mandated by the Arab oil barons, then why were they able to report an average increase in profits of 60 percent in recent months?" Anderson asked.

"Since the domestic oil companies were making money before the 'crisis', they are making even more money now," he said.

The Los Angeles lawmaker explained that seven Western oil firms, five of which are American (Exxon, Texaco, Mobil, Standard Oil of California, and Gulf), own 75 percent of the oil reserves developed in Saudi Arabia -- the major Arab exporter.

"So, for every dollar in price increases from Saudi Arabia, American oil companies reap about 60 cents. And since the price of Middle Eastern oil has jumped to $11.65 a barrel -- a 470 percent increase in just one year -- the American oil chiefs are making profits hand over fist," Anderson said.

To curb the avalanche of profits to oil giants, Anderson suggested an "excess profits tax which would bring revenue to government coffers, unless the oil companies put the huge profits into the further development of oil refineries, greater domestic exploration for new deposits, and the development of alternative sources of energy."

Anderson concluded by saying "that irresponsible behavior by the oil barons could invite the federal government to get into the act to insure competition by establishing a government corporation that would drill, refine and sell gasoline at the lowest possible price."

"It is becoming increasingly clear that the few giant oil companies cannot be trusted to provide 95 percent of this country's energy, with the ability to ruin our entire economy merely in the pursuit of windfall profits," Anderson stated.

Chairman Is Appointed

Michael M. Martin, D.D.S. of Carmel is announced as General Chairman of the 1974 Easter Seal Campaign on the Monterey Peninsula.

Jay Hopkins, President of the Easter Seal Society of the Monterey Peninsula, said Martin will lead our volunteers in seeking a total of $16,500.00 to finance treatment for crippled children and adults on the Peninsula, including Carmel, Carmel Valley, Big Sur, Seaside, Marina, Monterey, Pebble Beach and Pacific Grove.

The 1974 Campaign will be conducted March 1 through April 14.

In accepting the Easter Seal Chairmanship, Martin said: "I am deeply prominent role in activities of the Easter Seal organization, a voluntary agency that has worked to help the handicapped in California for 48 years. I invite the volunteer cooperation of all residents of the Monterey Peninsula in helping to bring this finest vastest reaching good work to as many crippled children and adults as possible in 1974."

The Monterey Peninsula Society is an affiliate of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of California and of the National Easter Seal Society, dedicated to serving all handicapped persons regardless of age, cause of crippling, race, religion, or economic status.

Younger Releases Paper On Crisis

Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger recently released an Attorney General's Position Paper dealing with environment and the energy crisis.

The paper lists a number of legislative and administrative goals which the Attorney General's Office will pursue to help California meet the energy shortage, Younger said.

Among the steps recommended by Younger are:

*Creation of a State Energy Agency to forecast energy needs and develop a state plan to meet those needs.

*A massive research program into alternate sources of energy, such as fuel cells, solar, geothermal, and fusion sources.

*Development of nuclear energy as a major power source, in conjunction with accelerated efforts to assure proper treatment, control, and disposal of nuclear waste.

*Comprehensive land use planning for California to avoid the proliferation of inadequately designed and power-wasting homes, poorly sited power plants and housing unnecessarily far removed from employment centers.

*Making energy efficiency and conservation major criteria in state vehicle purchase, state and private building and home construction, and building design.

*Revision of utility rates to encourage conservation of energy.

*Ending California's reliance on the automobile as virtually the sole means of personal transportation. This can be accomplished by state policies including: subsidies for mass transit, use of gasoline tax funds for public transportation, reduced bridge tolls for car pools, encouraging business and industry to locate near employee residential areas, and incentives to encourage people to move closer to their jobs.

*Encourageing offshore oil drilling where technology exists to assure safe drilling in hazardous situations, and where efficient containment and recovery procedures are available.

*Considering legislation to mandate minimum gasoline mileage for automobiles sold in California. Increased taxes should be used to discourage the use of automobiles which consume excessive fuel.

*An immediate effort to develop anti-pollution devices which do not reduce gasoline mileage.

*Annual automobile inspections to insure that automobiles are properly tuned so they will operate at maximum efficiency.

Copies of this position paper have been sent to Governor Reagan, and to legislators involved with energy legislation.

Guest Editorial

by Vice Mayor Stephen Ross

The untimely death of MR. & MRS. GERALD A. McGRATH was not only a shock to the people of SEASIDE, but to many people throughout the Monterey Peninsula. It was more than a shock to me.

With the passing of Gerry, Seaside lost one of its strongest supporters, and one of its hardest fighters for what he believed to be good government. During my short period of public service as councilman, I have had the privilege of serving with fourteen different councilmen. Each has, or had, his (or her) own personality, and philosophy of what is good for Seaside and how best to accomplish that good.

But none of us, in my opinion, worked harder to accomplish our objectives than Gerry. (Some of us worked as hard, and are still doing it). Although I understand that Gerry was a Catholic, he appeared to operate on one of the basic theories of the Science of Mind, and that is, "WHAT YOU THINK YOU ARE, PROCLAIMS ITSELF" and that was right. He would then proceed to make it so.

There were many things that we both believed very strongly should be done for the good of Seaside. But we differed much on the methodology. For that reason, we communicated a lot during the time he served on the Council. We spent many nights and into the early mornings, debating such matters.

His wife had a strong, sobering balance. When we got carried away, she would say something that would cool us off, without taking sides. That determination is evident in thechildren.

Last Thursday night, after Council meeting, (at which time we passed a resolution expressing condolance to the family, and ordering the Flag to be flown at half-mast on the day of the funeral), I went by to see how the children were doing, and to offer my services to do what ever I could to help. The youngest son and his older sister greeted me. The girl broke down and cried, feeling the load on her shoulders.

When I asked what I could do to help, she started to cry harder - but then she stopped; looked me straight in the eyes and said: "O'Yes! I know he wants you to straighten out this WATER mess here in Ord Terrace." She said it, as if there is no doubt whatsoever in her mind that her father would have done so, had he lived. I promised her that I would do all I could to improve the matter.

As you may have noted, I used the words "untimely death" in my open statement. But, actually, I do not believe that, literally I believe, rather, that there is a God of the Universe who makes out the time sheets and keeps them up to date; one who presides over the supreme Council, can flip on the tape and call the roll at any time. He can declare quorum at any time, notwithstanding the presence of any other Councilman because he carrys a TWO-THIRD VOTE in his hip-pocket at all time.

The only thing is -- we don't know when the gavel will sound. It is ours, therefore, to act as if we are at the controls, and our time is limited in which we must make good use of that control.

Knowing Gerry, I am sure that he would want it no other way, than going out STRAPPED IN THE DRIVER'S SEAT.

As I See It

by Mel Vercoe

The great toilet paper shortage scare has come up in the news again, just when we have been trying so hard to adjust to the shortage of gasoline and other fuels. Unfortunately the Arabs cannot be blamed for the paper shortage. Actually, the basic problem is that new paper mills cost so much, that nobody wanted to build them, until the shortage hiked the price of paper enough to make them more profitable than other investments.

And it is not just toilet paper that we have to consider. Newsprint has been a problem, and pretty soon stores will be asking customers to carry grapes and onions home in their pickets to save paper bags. A matter of patriotism, you understand. So we face this big dilemma, and at the same time we haul old newspapers out to the garbage cans, and garbage trucks haul them to city and county dumps to be buried or burned for the very simple and practical reason that recycling them would be too expensive and too much trouble.

Well, it needn't com to the point where people actually run out of toilet paper, because I have the answer, and it should not be taken lightly, certainly not in a time of crisis like this. The major difference between toilet paper and newspapers is two-fold -- the weight or stiffness and the absorbancy. If the Congress would set up a research fund and let out a research contract to either the Rand Corporation of Santa Monica or the Stanford Research Institute, it should not take more than two or three weeks to come up with a compromose paper formula that could be used for newspapers as well as toilet tissue.

From there on it would be very easy and very inexpensive to install rollers in the newspaper presses that would perforate the paper in squares of suitable size, and lo and behold, no more toilet paper shortage and a whole lot less usable paper stock being hauled away to be destroyed. In the interests of promoting political harmony in our country, I hereby donate this idea to the newsprint monopoly or whoever will make good use of it for the general good of mankind.

Bob Wood Reports

With the opening last week of the Legislative Session, it appears that there is considerable talk among lawmakers that a tax limitation plan may be resolved through inclusion of the basic principles of Proposition One -- the imposition of a limit on State government spending.

In fact, the tax limitation proposal is included in two tax reform plans which have been drafted for submission to the Legislature. One will be introduced by a Democratic lawmaker, the other by a Republican.

The new limitation proposal contained in both plans is considerably more flexible than that which the voters rejected in November in the Proposition One election, but was approved by the majority of the voters in Monterey County.

Both measures avoid amending the State Constitution. Either one could be enacted into law by the Legislature and the Governor without a vote by the people.

The bills apparently would use the current percentage of the gross personal income of the people which is now taken by State government as the spending limit for future budgets.

The measures will be unlike Proposition One plan, in that they would not attempt to decrease that percentage in future years, but would allow increases above that limit only if the Governor and Legislature enact findings that specific needs justify the increase.

The whole idea behind the proposed measures is to permit growth from year to year based on population increases and inflation in the same manner as Proposition One, but with looser restraints.

"FATHER OF FREEWAYS" -- Sen. Randolph Collier (D-Yreka), known as legislator who did most to promote California's vast freeway system, has endorsed Motor Publication's "Emission Control Manual" which, he said, gives garages, service stations and auto repair shops "all information they need to properly tune vehicles, adjust, repair and replace anti-pollution devices, and remove most of the pollutants from the atmosphere." Now dean of State Senate, veteran lawmaker stays in forefront on all problems of transportation. "If we don't stay on top of the smog problem, it will stay on top of us," Collier said.

Archeological Dig In Monterey County Approved By State

A project to conduct an archeological salvage operation near the Kirk Creek Bridge on Route 1 in Monterey County was approved recently by the California Highway Commission at a business meeting in Sacramento.

The site, located on a high terrace, is about 4.2 miles south of Lucia about 35 miles north of San Simeon Bay. It was once inhabited by the Salinan Indians, a tribe for which little archeological information is available.

Excavation is expected to provide a beginning for understanding how and why these aboriginal people lived on the rugged coastline. Information on how the site functioned in a larger settlement pattern will also be sought.

The project was financed at this time so digging operations could preceed future reconstruction of the Kirk Creek Bridge. A campground currently occupies the area.

Robert O. Gibson, an instructor at Cuesta College, will be in charge of an 11-man crew, recruited from all parts of California to work at the site.

Cost of the project is estimated at $23,000.

Assembly To Discuss Statewide Child Health Care

Assemblyman John L. Burton (D-San Francisco) has announced that the Assembly Ways and Means Subcommittee on Health and Welfare will hold a hearing to discuss the implementation of a statewide comprehensive child health care screening program.

This year Assembly Bill 2068, introduced by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, Jr., (D-San Francisco) was enacted which established a comprehensive child health screening program in California. One of the important provisions of the bill requires that beginning July 1, 1975, each child entering the First Grade must show evidence that he has obtained a comprehensive health and developmental examination. As is also indicated by the bill, counties are responsible for insuring that all eligible children receive a health screening examination.

"While this bill did not receive a great deal of attention while it was going through the legislative hoppers, it is what I consider an important first step in developing a total program of child health in California. Any piece of legislation, however, is only as good as its implementation, and the key to this legislation is how well it is implemented," stated the author of the bill.

Assemblyman Burton stressed that he is especially interested in hearing from health professionals and people in the community generally as to how this legislation can best serve its intended purposes.

Highway Projects Will Save Lives In California

Fifty-seven traffic safety projects approved recently by the California Highway Commission will prevent at least 8 deaths, 220 injuries and 450 accidents in the first year after their completions.

In recommending their approval, Director of Transportation James A. Moe said the figures are based on typical one-year before and after studies of past projects to improve points of accident concentration, and on a six-year study of projects to prevent out-of-control vehicles which leave the traveled way from colliding with fixed objects along the roadsides.

The Commission allocated $4,220,000 for these safety improvements.

Accident concentration locations are pinpointed by computerized surveillance of the state highway system and by reports from the Highway Patrol, maintenance personnel, local officials and concerned citizens.

They are improved by such means as easing curves, grooving the pavement or applying anti-skid treatment to it to prevent hydroplaning in wet weather, installing or modifying traffic signals and highway lighting, and constructing left-turn storage lanes.

Projects to give greater safety and recovery room to vehicles which leave the traveled way include moving light standards and sign supports farther from the pavement, placing "slip" of "breakaway" bases designed to give way without resistance upon impact under those light standards and sign supports which cannot be repositioned, installing guard railing to lessen the severity of impact at bridge ends, piers and abutments, and improving the gore area, between the through lanes of freeway viaducts and their various off-ramps.

This latter group are part of the CURE Program (Clean Up Roadside Environment) which started in 1966. Although travel from that year to 1972 increased 62 percent on California's freeway system, the type of accidents which the CURE program has eliminated or reduced in severity went from 241 fatalities which could be expected without CURE to 57 deaths in 1972.

Both the spot improvement and CURE projects are limited to $150,000 and are financed from a special traffic safety fund in the state highway budget. The Commission's increasing emphasis on traffic safety is shown by the increase in the special fund from $13,500,000 in the current fiscal year's budget to $18,900,000 in the budget for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

County, Seaside Get Highway Tax

State Controller Hugh Flournoy has announced the distribution of $67,306,060 among the State, cities and counties as the December apportionment of highway users taxes.

Monterey County's share was $215,318.36, and Seaside's share was $22,145.94. A total of $16,687,064 went directly to the counties; $12,617,584 to cities; $37,971,412 for expenditures on State Highways; and $30,000 to the Bicycle Lane Account.

The total apportionment was derived from the following sourcesL gasoline tax, $60,566,824; diesel fuel tax, $6,642,550; transfer from the Transportation Tax Fund, $93,097; and miscellaneous, $3,589.

The total available for the December apportionment was $7,319,766 more than that for the prior month. The gasoline tax was $4,036,132 higher than the November figures. The diesel fuel tax was $3,203,782 higher. The transfer from the Transportation Tax Fund was $77,073 more than in November.

The distribution was $2,576,344 greater than that for the same month last year. The December 1973 gasoline tax distribution was $3,598,506 above that for December 1972. The diesel fuel tax distribution was $2,051,637 above December 1972, and the transfer from the Transportation Tax Fund was $3,074,960 less.

Community Group Stands Up For Poor During Crisis

The energy crisis hurts poor people the most. This is, in simple terms, the statement of a strongly worded resolution that came from the Monterey County Community Services Commission. The commission expressed a serious concern for the increased problems of the poor and disadvantaged when there is an energy crunch. People who have to scrape to get gas for their cars, who have single wall houses that are hard to heat, and whose jobs are part-time or marginal are hurt first when prices go up, when fuel and heating is unavailable and when the lay-offs come.

In their resulution, the commission asked that the burdens of conservation of energy be placed on those who can afford them, not on those who total existence is wrapped up in finding food, a place to live and clothing for their backs. As commission members pointed out, when you have no extra money and costs go up, you have no choice but to give up a necessity.

The resolution has been sent to the President of the United States, the director of the new energy office, senators, congressmen, state officials and local elected officials. The letter stated, "The Attached resolution is forwared to you to emphasize our concern for the problems of the poor as amplified by the energy crisis. Any thought you can express to underscore the seriousness of the problem will be deeply appreciated. The resolution was passed unanimously by the 9 members present at the regularly scheduled meeting of the Community Services Commission."

MFIS Holding Registration

The Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies announces that advance registration for the second semester has begun and will continue until February 4. Orientation and the first day of instruction are scheduled for Tuesday, February 5th.

M.I.F.S., which emphasizes programs of professional study centered on an understanding of other nations and their cultural traditions, is the only accredited upper division and graduate school in Monterey County open to the public. It offers courses in foreign languages, world area studies, history, political science, education, international economics and international management. Most of these lead to the BA and MA degrees.

Two courses of special interest will be offered this spring by the Departments of Political Science and Asian Studies. Dr. Stephen A. Garrett, Chairman of the Department of Political Science and Humanities, will lead a stimulating seminar, "The Palestine Question," an intensive analysis of the historical background to the Arab-Israeli dispute, both before and after the founding of Israel. Professor Liang-Yen Chow will present a course entitled "Recent and Contemporary History of China," a study of the development of contemporary China stressing institutional and social changes as well as the Western impact upon traditional China.

Dr. Ly Tran, Chairman of the Department of Education, suggests two courses which may be of particular interest to members of the community. "Children's Literature" will deal with the art of story telling and the creative use of literature in the elementary classroom. "Seminar in School Administration" will stress school-community relations and has been designed to provide students interested in school administration with an opportunity to examine such relations in view of current changes in the public school system.

Other classes offered this spring will include: "Contemporary Novel of French Expression in Black Africa," "The Problem of the Two Germanies," "Diplomatic History of the United States," "The Great Transformation - Far East," "Aspects of Contemporary Indonesia," and "Contemporary Spanish-American Thought."

Interested peninsula residents are encouraged to contact George W. Williams, Dean of Admissions, 425 Van Buren Street, Monterey, 373-4779 for further information.

MPC Weekend College Is Growing

It appears that the "life-long" education concept will continue to grow and Monterey Peninsula College's answer to this demand is what is popularly being called "the weekend college."

Dr. Keith Merrill, dean of community education, outlined what both of the new terms mean for MPC. " 'Life-long' education refers to the need and interests of people to be students throughout their lives."

He said that the idea of college being only for recent high school graduates is speedily being overshadowed by older adults who are finding the need for more education to better themselves or their job outlooks. "Many people", Dr. Merrill said, "especially those who are retiring from the military, are coming to MPC to learn a second occupation or to prepare for advanced education at a four-year institution."

"The 'weekend college' concept is one of the few alternatives which MPC has to accomodate the growing numbers of older persons taking classes," said Dr. Merrill.

MPC is nearly out of classroom space and a growing number of courses are being scheduled for Fridays and Saturdays. "These courses are meeting with enthusiastic success," said Dr. Merrill, because many fully employed persons can take college courses only when they do not conflict with their jobs.

For the spring 1974 semester which starts the week of February 4, the MPC Community Education Office has scheduled 37 courses which meet on Friday nights or Saturdays. The deadline for convenient mail registration is January 18. On-campus registration will be held on January 30 and 31 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the gymnasium.

Concert Is This Weekend

The Monterey County Symphony Orchestra conducted by Haymo Taeuber will present the third set of concerts in its 28th season Sunday, January 20 at Monterey Peninsula College, Gym-Auditorium, repeating the performance in Carmel at Sunset Auditorium, Monday, Jan. 21, and in Salinas at Madonna del Sasso Church, Tuesday, Jan 22. All performances are at 8 p.m.

Stuart Canin, Concertmaster of the San Francisco Symphony, will be featured as soloist with the orchestra in the Beethoven Violin Concerto in D Major. Mr. Canin was solo artist with the San Francisco Symphony under Ozawa during the Orchestra's first tour of Europe and the Soviet Union. He has performed as soloist with major European and American orchestras and has concertized extensively as a recitalist throughout the two continents.

The Orchestra will open the concert with the Overture to "Fidelio" by Ludwig van Beethoven. The main orchestral work programed by Maestro Taeuber is Robert Schumann's Symphony No. 1 in B Flat Major, also known as "The Spring Symphony."

Tickets for the concerts are available at Carmel Music, Carmel, Abinante's Music, Monterey, Lily Walker Records & Music, Pacific Grove, Service Clubs on Military Posts, and at the Symphony Office, Sunset Center, Carmel. Salinas tickets may be purchased at Gadsby's Music Store, Kane & Zech, Dicker's Department Store, Salinas Music Center and the Music Box at Northridge. They may also be purchased at each Box Office the night of performances.
